Everyone from tots and teens to parents and grandparents will find something that stirs their imagination at the Norton Museum of Art’s current exhibition, “The Music Behind the Magic: Disney, 1928-Today.”

The show, which opens June 6 and runs until Sept. 6, is divided into themed sections that explore the music that brought Disney stories and characters to life. The interactive exhibit features more than 65 Disney artifacts, interpretive short films and hands-on challenge games that highlight the studio’s musically innovative past and still-influential present.

While you’re there, take in The Norton Museum’s other exhibitions, world-class art collection, eclectic gift shop and relaxing Café 1451.
